Produce Picture Brightens; Leafy Produce Starts

Produce Movement Loosens As Markets Open and Northern Weather Improves

Hopes of Glades growers were beginning to rise again this week following the collapse of the bean deal before Christmas. Volume of leafy produce began to rise slowly and celery was being shipped in quantity.

One produce man explained growers' present state of mind saying, "They are in the position of a man being beat over the head with a stick. When the stick stops, they feel good from relief."

Although some of the northern markets were still closed Wednesday, all markets were open for business Thursday hastening the movement of produce. Also the severe weather which has been hindering shipping eased off in favor of the growers.

Celery led the produce list with Golden bringing $2.50 to $3.50 and Pascal $2.50 to $3.50 depending on size. Leafy produce started in volume. Escarole and chervil sold for $1.50, romaine for $1.50 to $2. Boston lettuce from $1.25 to $2, cabbage which is starting slowly, U. S. No. 1 $4 and sacks $3.75, potatoes, A size, $2.25 to $2.50.

Pioneer Growers Cooperative reported celery, escarole, chervil, romaine, Boston lettuce and cabbage this week. American Fruit Growers handled ice packed lettuce, chervil, escarole, and potatoes. Keesee's cabbage and potatoes. Keesee's also shipped potatoes.

Duda and Sons processed escarole, chervil, chives, green cabbage, romaine and celery. Harold Rubin's packing house did not operate up to Wednesday.

Graber and Sons reported that relatives were bringing $4 and that the quality was fancy. The packing house also shipped escarole and escarole. There will be some Chinese cabbage next week, a spokesman said.

Browsing through the exchange papers we get in the office this week, I was duly surprised and happy because I found that an editor had put into print a subject which has been worrying me a lot and about which I have remained silent.

Naturally I was elated upon discovering that there are two great talents in the world, but in addition, I was surprised to find that the author 57 years in figure out the consumption of existence. I have been having questioned it several years ago, came to my very conclusion. (Continued on page 2)

Riding Cowboy In Limousine Appears Here Over Xmas

Roy E. Ray, the riding cowboy from Bar "Z" Ranch of Aladdin, Wyoming, stayed here over the Christmas holidays in a limousine which was very different from the wide open spaces and bucking broncos. He was in real cattle country.

The 6-foot one-inch dark haired, blue eyed cowboy has owned his horse for a Plymouth for two years. He is sealed in the car in which he must live for the full period without getting out.

This experiment is supported by the individual Plymouth dealers throughout the United States. The present record of living in a car is now held by Don Haynes, who stayed in a car for 13 months, 18 days, six hours and 45 minutes.

Confined in the car, Ray will cover the 48 states. He feels that he might just as well be doing something for his fellow man during this time so he decided he would ask a millionnaire in each of the states for a check made out to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Albany Ray has traveled 21,000 miles and covered every state west of the Dakotas. During the winter he plans to cover the South and East and he is (Continued on page 2)

Engineers Of FCD To Meet Here With Glades Growers

Informal Dinner Meeting Set For 7:30 Jan. 15th In Bell's Restaurant

Central and Southern Florida Flood Control engineers accepted the invitation of an interested Glades group to meet here to discuss problems pertaining to the project prior to the flood control meeting at which U. S. engineers will be present scheduled sometime after Jan. 15.

In the third of a series of preliminary meetings, sponsored by the local chamber of commerce, Glades representatives went on record to invite FCD engineers to an informal dinner meeting on Jan. 15 in Bell's Restaurant.

In a previous meeting, growers and land owners formulated questions concerning control measures, operations, timing, specific areas and those concerning the entire agricultural area. Representatives of the local chamber of commerce made a complete list of questions and suggestions for presentation at the major flood control meeting.

General questions to be discussed at the dinner meeting include: What provisions have been made for the vast accelerated improvement of additional water control measures?

The group plans to ask the engineers if the water stored in conservation areas will be available for use in the agricultural areas during dry seasons and what provisions (either temporary or permanent) for change of priority have been made to protect the agricultural area during construction of levees and other installations between the agricultural and conservation areas.

As part of the program, scouts received the Scout Promise and sang "America" as the Scout song.

PROPER PROPORTION

Much can be said about nothing and, quite often, little is spoken concerning subjects and problems which are essential and of deep public concern.

If anyone doubts the hours can be spent discussing and hashing into the smallest segments a subject which actually amounts to nothing, they should have attended several recent commission meetings.

Since the governing body passed an ordinance regulating the closing hours of liquor establishments the inclination toward windy conversation has been reduced.

A controversy arose recently about whether a proprietor operating an adjoining restaurant and bar should be compelled to close his restaurant at the time of closing his bar in compliance with the hours set in the ordinance.

Probably more than an hour was spent at a meeting several weeks ago considering the problem and discussing if wire petitions would suffice before the commission.

Upshot of the conversation was that the chief of police should be the authority on permitting operation and deciding whether the dividing line is adequate.

At a later commission meeting another proprietor appeared before the body with questions concerning the same problem. Again the commission began a tirade of discussion and managed to dissolve considerable time in this redundancy and, of course, came to the same point which it had reached previously.

But there is every possibility that every liquor establishment operator in town will have a controversy to contend with the matter is firmly settled in the public mind, and it is also probable that similar lengthy considerations will take up valuable commission time before the questions are referred to Goodlett.

An effective resolution of the question for the new year would be to put first things first and handle everything in its proper proportion.

HEALTH DEPT. REVIEWS PROGRESS DURING YEAR

Florida's public health picture looked brighter at the end of the year than at the beginning, according to a report by the state health department.

But even though problems — new and old kept arising to keep public health workers hustling. It also was a year that saw the state's population soaring to an estimated 2,300,000 people.

With the prospect that the million mark would be reached in the fall of 1952 if the present rate of increase continued.

Incidents that caused the alarm bells ringing were an outbreak of anthrax in Broward County and a substantial increase in the number of cases of whooping cough.

But even the bad side had a bright side. At the year ended, it appeared that prompt control measures would check the anthrax outbreak and more interest was developing in the immunization for whooping cough.

During the summer months, weather conditions proved ideal for the creation of vast swarms of mosquitoes. Entomologists were forced reluctantly to admit that sprays containing DDT only considered a "miraclic kill" where insects were concerned, was losing its effectiveness when used repeatedly.

Apparently the few mosquitoes which survived this chemical attack were breeding a new crop of "DDT resistant" insects. More attention to eliminating breeding areas and less reliance on chemical sprays was advised as an insect control measure.

Meanwhile the State Budget Commission made an additional $50,000 available to the counties to assist in insect control programs aimed primarily at mosquitoes after the State Board of Health directed that an emergency existed.

Another new wrinkle in the war on insects was the use of radioactive substance to "trace" the migration of mosquitoes to determine how far the insects to increase the staff of enforcement inspectors. National interest on drug addiction among teenagers brought requests for numerous speeches from Parent-Teacher Associations, clubs and other civic groups. The Bureau director reported "no evidence" of addiction among Florida's school children.

In the field of tuberculosis control, it was noted that the death rate from this disease was dropping, particularly among Negroes, where the tuberculosis case and death rates have been higher than among the general population. The X-ray program continued, with approximately a half million persons receiving this service from the State Board of Health's mobile X-ray trailers and other available X-ray units.

In the environmental health field, a significant development was the designation of critical defense areas within the state, with the possibility of obtaining needed public health facilities, such as water supplies and sewage disposal systems, and the strong probability of greatly accelerated housing construction.

The state so designated include Key West, Brevard County, Sanford, Palatka and Pensacola.
